Giant Oaks Removed

Two giant oak trees which for many years shaded the yards of the Methodist parsonage and the Frank Wilkes home on Rushing street have given away to the woodsmen's axe. They had outlived their usefulness and were damaging the houses and the sidewalks. The old oaks will be missed, however each yard still has another giant oak remaining that will furnish shade as can be used.
Several young men took the contract for felling the large trees and found they had tackled a herculean job. However, they stuck manfully to their task and now the yard is so full of tree trunks and big limbs, the problem now is—how will they be removed?

More Rattlesnakes

Grady Williams, who lives four miles west of Elba on the lower Curtis Road, brought two rattlesnakes to town Tuesday evening spread out on the bed of his truck. He said a neighbor boy, young Gaines, killed one of the rattlesnakes that afternoon in the Holland Gravelly. When Mr.
Williams heard about it he went to the scene and found and killed the second snake. The rattlesnakes measured about three and one-half feet in length and had seven and nine rattles respectively.
Ellis Sellers, employed at the Reeves Furniture Company in W.
Elba, reports that he killed a big rattler near the new fish pond site. This snake had 19 rattles.
Reports from various parts of the county indicate that there are more rattlesnakes this year than there has been for a long time. As the bird season approaches hunters are warned to use unusual care in avoiding these reptiles.

NOT MANY LEFT

The Elba Athletic Commission has set aside forty more tickets to be sold for $7.50 and covering all home games for two years. Purchasers of the tickets will have their names printed on the seat reserved and are assured of the seat, no matter how late they arrive, nor how crowded the stands are. These remaining forty tickets are on sale at the Whitman Drug Co. and will be handled on a first come first served basis. If you want one of these tickets, come by the drug store as early as possible. No more reserved seats will be available after these forty tickets are sold.

MAKING CONVERSATION

The green car rolled to a smooth halt and the driver leaned out of the window and called to the old man with a cane. "Am I on the right road to Springfield?" he asked.

The old man looked up and said, "Huh?"

The driver shouted, "Am I on the right road to Springfield?"

"You'll hev to talk a little louder, young feller, I'm a mite deaf," the old man replied.

The driver tried a third time, then realizing the case was hopeless, continued on his way.

He had traveled about three miles when he came to a farmhouse in front of which the farmer's wife was standing.

He stopped the car and called, "Am I on the—?"

"Keep right on this road," she said, "I heard you the first time."

FAIR ENOUGH

"May I take Johnny to the zoo tomorrow afternoon?" his eldest sister asked.

"Certainly not," snapped the boy's father. "If the zoo wants him, let them come after him!"

Too True

Neighbor—"Ah, your baby looks very pretty in that dress. Where are you taking her?"

Mother—"To her grandmother's house for a general overhauling."

No Come-Down

A famous author was attending a party when a very unimportant writer came up to him and belittled himself to the author. He admitted that he was a poor writer, a hack, and shouldn't even be included in the great man's company.

The author listened patiently for five minutes, then said, "Why do you make yourself so small? You were never that big."

Still Stuck

Gerald had inherited the chore of mowing the lawn every week from his three older brothers. That was an old family custom. When the latest addition to the family was old enough he was shown how to do it and there was no escape.

It was the day to mow the lawn again when he was told that another baby had been brought to the house. He beamed happily at the good news.

"And what do you think?" his father continued. "You now have a baby sister."

Gerald's face fell as he muttered disconsolately, "Golly, I'm stuck with the lawn."
